Apolipoprotein L1 (APOL1) has been implicated in the pathogenesis of both atherosclerosis and Alzheimer's disease, where APOL1 expression has also been detected. We examined APOL1 expression in the aging hippocampus, a region crucial for memory function, and in the post-mortem brain of Alzheimer's disease patients. We found increasing expression of APOL1 in the hippocampus with age in rats, consistent with the finding that APOL1 can bind neurofilaments and be deposited in the aged human brain. Furthermore, we found age-dependent APOL1 expression in the hippocampus of C57BL/6 mice, the same mouse strain used by VanEpps and colleagues (Am J Pathol. 2007;170:1523-30) in their interpretation of the association of APOL1 with Alzheimer's disease. APOL1 mRNA levels in the hippocampus of Alzheimer's disease patients were also found to be increased compared to controls. Lastly, we found increasing APOL1 expression in the hippocampus of four-month-old rats exposed to the water maze, compared to controls. Taken together, these findings support a role for APOL1 in the hippocampus of aging and Alzheimer's disease.CEDAR PARK, Texas - Hundreds of visitors from outside Fayette County came to the Bear Hollow Conservation Area for a family-friendly, do-it-yourself day of hiking and hunting. Dave Hunks and his girlfriend, Cindy, set out to do just that. Dave and Cindy said they went to the Bear Hollow Conservation Area about five years ago and have become regular visitors. "We come here most weekends," Cindy said.
