Sunderland landlord fails to pay £45,000 in rent A Sunderland property developer who failed to pay the rent on his £3million-plus luxury home in Ryhope has escaped jail after pleading guilty to a charge of eviction. David Day's home at Brookbank - dubbed Ryhope House or Landlord Hill - was taken over by North East Housing Trust, which had to carry out a dangerous work inspection before managing the property. The owner of the luxury development in Ryhope, near South Shields, failed to pay the rent on his property, which it took over for administration, from February until December 2012. Day, 62, was previously convicted of five charges of aggravated burglary and three of possession of an offensive weapon in 1998. After pleading guilty to the evictions in 2014, Day was jailed for 12 months, but was immediately released after serving a month under licence. Graham Lees, defending, told Newcastle Crown Court: “David Day has acknowledged that he is a man of means and owns a house worth £3million.

“He has, on these premises, a tenant whose lease has terminated. It is correct that the rent has been in arrears for several years, and there is some relief to be said for that, but there is no doubt that it would be a difficult case to explain.
“Mr Day is prepared to pay the £45,000 into the local benefit economy through the local authority. He has also been ordered to pay the amount to the court within 10 days as well as to the police for the enforcement action.”

Police worked with Ryhope Parish Council and North East Housing Trust to evict Day from his luxury home. North East Housing Trust's legal officer Jonathan Hawes said Day was in possession of property with a "very significant criminal background" – but managed to avoid prosecution by converting his lease into a tenancy agreement. Mr Hawes, who added that a second expensive home had also been taken into possession, said Day had put Ryhope House up for sale. He added: “After we had taken over the property we discovered that the problem was that Mr Day had terminated a lease on the property. “We were in a position where we took over the property in administration. So he was responsible for the payment of rent and keeping the place fit for occupation, all of which means we carried
