This also works great for an xbox 360 10 chip. Thanks for this CMD Hack http. .Q: What is the most accurate way to show the total of all requests done by a website? I'm working on a website which uses a lot of AJAX calls. I am working on caching, and want to know what is the most accurate way to know the total number of requests done by the site. Currently we can see the amount of requests being done over the past hour/day/week, but that might be wrong. Any ideas? A: Well, I'd say - as an absolute minimum, your number should include Ajax requests to the server. But since you know that the Ajax calls are being dispatched to your server, there's no reason to make that information available in your own code. That's just being for your own benefit. If you want to know, to avoid losing the information, you can track that information in your database or elsewhere. If you're looking for a quiet weekend getaway, Drayton Valley, North Carolina, and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park are just a short drive away from the Blue Ridge Parkway. History in the Natural Setting Drayton Valley is a pleasant small town just off the Blue Ridge Parkway with a string of charming shops. Locals have been settled here since the late 1700s. Today it's a destination for people from nearby towns. There are people here from New York, North Carolina, Virginia and all parts of Georgia. The Hotel and Restaurant The Juniper Mountain Inn is an 18-room bed and breakfast in a restored historical mansion. Also, the Inn offers turn-of-the-century charm and amenities for guests. The Inn, which is nestled in the Smoky Mountain foothills, hosts weddings, corporate retreats, meetings and seminars. When
