Vapor-dispensing cups are used to collect beverage fluids, such as coffee, water, tea, and the like, and dispense the beverage fluids into a receptacle. Commonly, a replaceable filter is positioned at the bottom of the cup, and the contents are drained through the filter into the receptacle. Vapor-dispensing cups have been configured to dispense both hot and cold beverage fluids. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 5,038,832 teaches a cup with a filter positioned below a bottom opening. The filter separates a portion of the beverage fluid from the remainder of the beverage fluid, thereby producing a portion of the fluid that is hot and a portion of the fluid that is cold. Another vapor-dispensing cup is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 5,338,090. In that reference, the bottom of the cup is configured to provide two separate passageways, one for collecting hot beverage fluid and one for collecting cold beverage fluid. Apertures in the bottom of the cup control the flow of beverage fluid into the respective passageways. U.S. Pat. No. 4,776,331 discl 6d1f23a050
