Our aim was to determine the level of knowledge of emergency and critical care for visitors in ambulances in case of an on-the-spot emergency and which resources were used to obtain this knowledge. A cross-sectional survey was designed to determine the level of knowledge and the resources for providing it. The survey was completed by all ambulance staff in the ambulance control room and at base stations to determine emergency/critical care knowledge and resources. SPSS-18 was used for analysis. One hundred and forty-one staff, 74% male, were surveyed. One hundred and nineteen staff (83.6%) claimed to know which resources were available. The correct answer for the first aid c6a93da74d
