the multiple "operations" of the epr were designed to destabilize the government and paralyze the peruvian economy, causing the death of many innocent civilians. the operations were based on the attacks of the montoneros in the 1960s. the operation code named "el juego" (the game) was led by the national liberation army (ejército nacional de liberación (eln)). this operation started in february 1982 with the execution of josé enrique rodó and carlos cárcamo, two dissident officers in the epr, and followed by the most intensive operations in peru and the americas. during this period the epr killed more than 800 people and wounded nearly 4,000. the epr took over 30,000 people hostage in banks and trains, many of them civilians. the operations were driven by the objective of overthrowing the constitutional government of alberto fujimori, and a long struggle against neoliberalism. the epr was responsible for the kidnappings of an estimated 200 officials in the 1980s. in total, the epr was responsible for up to 17,000 murders in the 1980s. the epr effectively attacked the entire peruvian state apparatus, particularly the judiciary, the police, the army, and the telecommunications systems. an interesting phenomenon of the dispersal of the spores of the a. peruvianum is that not only the spores are ejected from the sporangium but also a stalk-like part of the sporangium called the sporangial annulus breaks off and rapidly flies away. it is ejected together with the spores, which are released by a sudden dehiscence. the annulus travels almost as fast as the spores, with an average speed of about 10 m/s [17]. a. peruvianum has about 5 to 6 sporangia per sporangial cup. the sporangial cups are arranged in a tube-like structure around the pedicel. a sporangial cup is normally closed by an indusium-like sporangial cup, the false indusium, that is firmly attached to the sporangial cup. during dehiscence of a sporangium the indusium disappears and both sporangial cup and sporangial annulus separate from the pedicel. the annulus releases the spores to the surrounding air and the sporangial cup opens to release the spores. we measured the speed of the sporangial annulus in the laboratory using a high-speed camera at 500,000 frames per second. the sporangial annulus traveled with a mean speed of 7.7 m/s, although the speed of the annulus can vary from 2 to more than 10 m/s [17].
