No problems to speak of, and it seems that it has a good start. Re: 13/7/2010: only the banner, thanks for your suggestion. I will ask the webhost provider to change it.

Re: 20/7/2010: The server has been switched to a new provider. If something new happens, I will immediately let you know. I hope you are satisfied with the answer, as there is no guarantee that you'll get an answer again. I found it a bit cumbersome to post a question, not to speak of correcting errors, and copying the content to a second page. However, this did help me a lot to understand that the website works as expected and there are no problems to speak of. You are very kind to help. Marketing/Promotions Content I am working on a website with customer support, I am still not really clear about how I should divide it between marketing/promotions and the Support part. Should I stick to the suggested structure, with a few elements in marketing, only to be able to quickly access my client's support? Re: 20/7/2010:

The site has been up for about
