If you are still reading this I am already dead. :p Nothing much to report this month, I have started a new job in a new city, I've also been asked to review one of my favourite films of all time: Evil Dead 2. For obvious reasons I have re-watched it this year (my first viewing was in the '90s) and I've also written a small review about it on here. One of my favourite scenes, to me at least, from this film is the crazy fanatical group of necromancers that invade the Necronomicon. This scene is also one of the few times that I remember seeing Bruce Campbell in action. The scene is a homage to Hammer Horror films and suits the film so perfectly. I think the movie is fun, but this scene I think stands out as my favourite. Bad movies, good movies? Sometimes the very best movies are those that are a bit rubbish. They take the chance to do something incredible and occasionally pull it off. These are the movies that make you think; maybe these are the movies that those in the business of showing the world to us should spend more time making instead of trying to create new and innovative ways of making money from us. 1.
