Bissell, the former administrator of the DEA's Chicago field office, worked in the office as a special agent during the late 1990s and early 2000s. In October 2005, Bissell was reassigned to the Chicago field office, where he functioned as the administrator until January 2009. Bissell was arrested in December 2008 and charged with depriving a person of the right to free speech by threatening a person with false arrest, false imprisonment, and assault and battery. He pleaded guilty to all of the charges and was sentenced to probation. In July 2009, S.I.G. issued a preliminary investigation report detailing Bissell's disciplinary history with the DEA and his fraudulent activities that enabled him to retain his federal employment despite substantial discipline.
